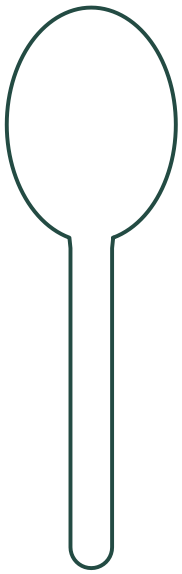
What else could it do?

Keep the spoon outline intact. Give it an unexpected job and add a setting that shows how it works; its new purpose must be something other than eating or serving food.

Keep every original mark visible and in the same relative position. Rotate or uniformly resize the whole starter only.

Imagine three ideas, then develop one. Rough sketches and written ideas are welcome.



Reflect: Which property of the spoon makes its new job possible?

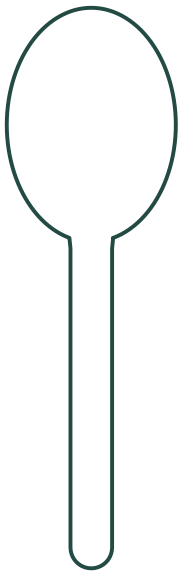
Challenge 08 / What else could it do?



My first assumption:

What changed when I looked again?

Starter description: A vertical spoon outline: an oval bowl at the top narrows into a long slim handle with a rounded bottom. The interior is blank.
